

This is the year to take action and tackle climate change head-on for the realisation of national sustainability commitments. RenewableUK and Solar Energy UK have teamed up to present a one-of-a-kind virtual event series designed specifically to bring together buyers and sellers of clean energy to explore opportunities, learn how to remove barriers to procurement and establish robust cases for long-term investment in power purchase agreements.

Sessions will be supported by event partners EDF Renewables, ScottishPower, techUK and WaterUK, with industry sponsors including CMS, DLA Piper, Weightmans and Zeigo.

Don't miss:

- Transport | Wednesday 02 June
- Public Sector | Thursday 01 July

Delegates will have the opportunity to influence UK decision-makers developing the regulatory frameworks for power procurement and consumption during exclusive interactive Q&A sessions, as well as gaining access to business intelligence reports and state-of-the-art technology insights. With individuals from many different areas attending from senior procurement and corporate sustainability executives to analysts, banks, developers and more, there will also be the chance to network and engage with colleagues across the field.
